Will the Philadelphia Eagles and Saquon Barkley, the NFL's Offensive Player of the Year, stop the Kansas City Chiefs in their quest for a three-peat?

Or will Chiefs quarterback Patrick Mahomes — already with three Super Bowl wins and three Super Bowl MVPs — lead his team to a history-making victory?

Super Bowl LIX kicks off at 6:30 p.m. ET with a live broadcast on FOX, and fans without cable can watch with a free trial of fuboTV or DirecTV Stream or with a subscription to Sling (Half of your first month).

No team has ever won three consecutive Super Bowls, but in order for Kansas City to become the first, they'll have to defeat a Philadelphia team out for revenge.

Two years ago, the Chiefs rallied for a 38-35 victory over the Eagles in Super Bowl LVII. Sunday's rematch marks just the second time two teams have met in the Super Bowl twice in a three-year period, following the Bills and Cowboys, who met after the 1992 and '93 seasons.

What channel is Eagles vs. Chiefs on? And what are the streaming options?

There may be no better host for Super Bowl LIX than New Orleans, a city rich in supernatural lore. Either the Chiefs will complete their mystical season with an unprecedented three-peat, or the Eagles will revisit history by avenging their Super Bowl LVII loss to Patrick Mahomes & Co.

To get here, the Chiefs survived a thriller against the Buffalo Bills in the AFC Championship Game, while the Eagles steamrolled the Washington Commanders in the NFC Championship Game. The last time these two teams met with the Lombardi Trophy on the line, Kansas City eked out a 38-35 victory.

But so much has changed in the two years since that showdown.

Philadelphia's backfield now runs through powerhouse Saquon Barkley, Mahomes has a revamped cast of wide receivers, and -- unrelated to football but very much relevant to pop culture -- Travis Kelce is dating Taylor Swift (ever heard of her?).

The teams may be familiar, but the stakes are bigger than ever. No matter the outcome, Super Bowl LIX is poised to deliver a history-making finale to the 2024 season. -- Brooke Pryor
